“Prophet is very user friendly and it is a system that works extremely well for our business.

In particular we love how any information required about customers or inventory is easily accessed, as it is paramount that we have effective and timely management of our customer accounts and over 500 stock items.

There is also a great selection of reports available for Sales Analysis, which is especially important for the nature of our business as well.

We find the support provided by Palmside Software Consultants is excellent! Most issues can be sorted over the phone, but if an on-site visit is required, they do so very promptly.”

Profile

Founded in 1996, AVO New Zealand plays a pivotal role in the Electrical and Power Industries throughout the South Pacific. They have New Zealand branches established in the Auckland and Wellington regions and a Head Office in Christchurch.

AVO New Zealand pride themselves on having arguably the most comprehensive range of quality test and measurement equipment for the electrical industry available from a single source in New Zealand.

Through their commitment to a 'total solutions' service, they also offer comprehensive training programmes, industry news updates and technical advice through their Customer Services Department and on-line technical users group.
